PRFFACE

In conjunction with its Jubilee Celebration, Woodlawn Baptist Church assigned to a History Committee the task of compiling a formal statement of the progress of God's people in the Art Cloth Community which was developed about 1923. Thus, we have tried to evaluate and record the activities, the accomplishments, the failures, and the blessings of the Lord's people at Woodlawn, especially from 1928 to 1978, our fiftieth year.

God has led us to see the importance of this history as a chart of our church's progress and a challenge to its future growth. We have used not only the previously recorded and written histories but oral and pictorial histories as we have been able to find them. Since this is the most comprehensive history-writing attempt in these fifty years, we have, of course, found times when records were inadequate. Nevertheless, it has been a great blessing and joy to us who have worked so closely together in writing it. We are submitting it to you with a prayer that you too will be blessed as you read and explore it.

—The Jubilee History Committee

THE ART CLOTH COMMUNITY

Art Cloth Mills, Incorporated, came into Lowell in 1923 and purchased more than three hundred acras of land from D. W. Mitchem. About the same time they bought smaller parcels of land from J. Holland Morrow, Peerless Manufacturing Company, and Henry W. McAden, making a total of about 45 acres of land. A short time later the first mill was built and streets were laid out for residential areas.

Many of the people who came to the community were from the Greenville, South Carolina area, but some came from Lowell and Mc-Adenville. In addition to textile employees, some were construction workers who built the houses.

In 1926 the corporation sold to the Gaston County Board of Education 2-35/100 acres of land to be used as a site for a school building. A small business district, including a bandstand, was located on the Main Street and near the Piedmont and Northern Railway.

When financial difficulties arose in the middle Thirties, the corporation faced bankruptcy and was reorganized as the National Weaving Company. About 1939 the company began selling the homes to the emloyees who wanted to buy them. One large house at the corner of Love and Stowe Streets remained open as a boarding house and was kept open for many years by Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Barr.

Beaunit Mills had merged with National Weaving Company and had built a tricot knit plant. At this time all of the village lay north of the Piedmont and Northern Railway; but, in the late 1940's, Beaunit Mills built a housing development on the south side of the railroad which came to be known as Beaunit Heights. These houses were immediately sold to people who worked in the plant. Also, Israel Rogosin gave some of the land across from the Beaunit Heights section to the town of Lowell for a recreation park.

In 1941 the National Weaving Company sold to Woodlawn Baptist Church a tract of land upon which to build a church. This is the only church unit that has ever operated in this part of town.

During its history, the village has supported grocery stores in two locations, a drug store, a dry goods shop, an auto repair shop, a cafeteria, a barber shop and a branch post office. The school was closed in 1968 and all children began attending school in Lowell. In the fall of 1978, elementary children will again attend school in the Art Cloth area when the new school on Power Drive is opened.

Chapter 1 — IN THE BEGINNING

The official organization of a Baptist Church in the Art Cloth community of Lowell, North Carolina, on July 29, 1928, was a crowning climax to the efforts and dedication of those Christian men and women who had been migrating to the new village from textile areas in North and South Carolina since the Art Cloth Mill began operations and built residences for its employees about 1923.

The first religious services in the community were held in a frame building, later destroyed by fire, and consisted of preaching services led by the Rev. C. F. Comstock. Sometime after these worship services were initiated, Mrs. Brandon, who lived on Main Street across from the Art Cloth Elementary School, began inviting children to her home for Sunday School classes. She was concerned for the young people in the community. When this Sunday School group began to outgrow her home, the County School Board granted permission, in 1926, for the classes to meet in the school building. The only restriction was that the Mission Sunday School, as it had been called, continue to be a non-denominational, or Union Sunday School, as long as public property was used. Consequently, the school changed from the Methodist literature it had been using to David C. Cook Publications.

As the Sunday School grew and prospered, an even deeper hunger was developing. The people longed for a place of their own to worship God. This, of course, called for the establishment of some denominational affiliation. A committee consisting of W. P. Walker, Robert Jackson, Mrs. Charlotte Lang, Allene Carman, Mrs. J. F. Vickery, and Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Sherrill was appointed to canvass the community to determine the church preference most prominent.

When the committee found that a majority of the community's residents preferred the Baptist faith, they asked Dr. Walter Gilmore, a missionary of the North Carolina Baptist Convention to guide them in developing plans for the church's organization. When the preliminary plans were completed Dr. Gilmore came to Lowell on July 29, 1928, to activate them. He spoke to the group on "Baptist Beliefs" and was elected by them to moderate the business affairs. Rev. E. V. Hudson of Cramerton First Baptist Church and Rev. J. L. Jessup of Lowell First Baptist Church assisted Dr. Gilmore. Rev. Jessup read the "Articles of Faith" and Dr. Hudson expounded them. The congregation pledged their support to the Baptist doctrine and the new church was born!

On that first day J. F. Vickery was elected deacon; W. P. Walker, clerk; Allene Carman, assistant clerk; and Augustus L. Stafford and Luther A. McAlister were named as the first pulpit committee.

Before the meeting adjourned, the doors of the church were opened, and, according to oral records, thirty-six people joined the church as charter members. There is no copy today of the session's minutes or its original roll, but the oldest existing records list twelve members as having joined on August 5, 1928, the Sunday following the organizational meeting. They are: Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Carter, George Carter, Thelma Carter, Wilma Carter, Mrs. Ruth Brissy Leatherwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. L.

Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Cloninger, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. St. Clair, Sr. Since J. F. Vickery, W. P. Walker and Luther McAlister were elected to office, they must have also united with the church, probably with their wives. Also the name of C. R. Stack was listed as a messenger to the Gaston Association in October, 1928 and Miss Allene Carman was listed as assistant church clerk. Very soon after that date—August 5, 1928—these others were listed as new members: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brooks, John and Wade Carter, Catherine and Walter Cook, A. B. Davis, Mrs. R. F. Flowers, Mrs. E. E. Foster, Mrs. Hunnicutt, Hazel and Carrie St. Clair, and Mrs. E. P. Greenway.

The Gaston Baptist Association met in the Marietta Street Church in 1928 and recorded (on page 14 of its Minutes) the following action: Dr. B. A. Bowers, C. M. Robinson, and R. G. Mace were appointed as a committee to "report on the Church Covenant" at the Mt. View and Woodlawn Baptist Church. Page 3 of the same journal reports that Dr. J. W. Whitley introduced the new pastors. Among them were the Rev. C. F. Comstock at Woodlawn and also the Rev. M. P. Rhyne at Webb's Chapel. Rev. Rhyne would later be pastor at Woodlawn.

By associational meeting time the church had already had its second business meeting on August 19, at which time they voted to canvass the community to solicit financial support for the new church. On the same day, they elected W. P. Walker their first treasurer. On September 16, 1928, following a recommendation from the name selection committee, the church chose the name "Woodlawn" which had been the name of an early textile mill in the area. On October 3, two additional deacons, A. L. Stafford and W. P. Walker, were elected.

The 1928 Associational Minutes give the following breakdown of the church's finances: Pastor's salary, $70; ministerial help and supply, $35.31; incidentals, $31; literature, $71.58; other objects, $176; and, for printing the minutes, $1.23. Sunday School statistics show 132 enrolled in the Union organization. K. E. Sherrill remained active as superintendent though he never joined the Baptist Church.

In October 1929, Rev. Comstock, W. P. Walker, and J. R. Brooks went to the associational meeting to hear the executive committee report on the new church at Woodlawn. They reported 18 baptisms and 40 additions by letter. They also mentioned the Sunday School meeting in the school building, two unions in the B.Y.P.U. (Baptist Young Peoples Union), and an appropriation of $300 presented to the church by the State Mission Board.

October 1, 1928, through September 30, 1929, constituted the first full associational year for Woodlawn. During this time the church held two revivals and observed the Lord's Supper once. Membership reached 77 members. (They had lost, probably by moving, 27 members during the year.) This report shows the first Woman's Missionary Union and a pastor's salary of $1,250. The total budget was only $1,501.

On February 3, 1929, A. L. Stafford and J. L. Vickery were elected to contact mill officials about a building site. The lot was selected, a building fund was started, and suddenly the bank at Lowell closed its doors with all building funds lost. The hopes and dreams of the church were shattered as it faced its darkest hour. The associational minutes for 1930 are an exact copy of the 1929 report. Apparently, no report was sent in, and the previous year's figures were used. This year, only one messenger, Rev. Comstock, registered at the associational meeting. Allene Carman and J. L. Hawkins attended the sessions as visitors.

1931 is the only year in the church's history that reports no baptisms. The church listed total gifts for the year as $1,413.56. Much of the credit for financial support during the next several years goes to the ladies of the church who pieced quilts, crocheted, sold flavorings, and cooked chicken stews, cakes, and box suppers. From 1931 through 1935, the offerings averaged $1,044 per year. (The lowest report was made in 1936 when only $645 was received into the treasury.)

Rev. Comstock resigned the pastorate on August 31, 1930. In November of this year, Rev. W. T. Baucom came on a half-time basis. In 1934, following Rev. Baucom's resignation, Rev. G. G. Bowen was called as pastor.

As we close the chapter on the first Sabbath of years for Woodlawn we would like to mention a few of the names which have not been recorded elsewhere in this account. This list should include all these and perhaps others: J. E. Proctor, Ida Campbell, Mrs. Ruth Mullen, Misses Oda, Ethel, and Eula Smallwood, Mrs. A. B. Davis, Troy Davis, Mrs. Ben Jenkins, Mrs. Charles Petty, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Sanders, G. T. League, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Barr, Mrs. W. A. Stallings, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lockridge, Walter Crompton, J. T. Cox, Sudie Cloninger, Frances and Nannie Godfrey, Frankie Mitchem Wiley, Virginia Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Curry, Lucille and Josephine Curry, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dodson, Sam Mitchem, Martin Phillips, Annelle Barr (Jackson), Amelia Barr (Edwards), Vivian Shepherd, James McGaha, J. C. Bolick, Lora Lane, Irene Barr (Mills), Elizabeth Carter (Causby), Helen Smith, Tom and Charles Stafford, Earl B. Stogner, Maude and Pauline Petty (Carter), Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Ragan, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Mattox and Jessie Bowen. Some of these are on the church roll. Others are listed as various officers: Mrs. D. O. Ragan led the first Sunbeam Band of fifty members in 1934, Mr. Clarence Grant was the first pianist, and Mr. Bill Wynn the first chorister. Clarence Grant is the first reported loss in membership because of death.

Chapter 2 — STRUGGLE AND VICTORY

Rev. Grady G. Bowen, who pastored the church part-time beginning June 16, 1934, accepted a call as full-time pastor after six months. In 1935, Gray McArver was Sunday School superintendent and James McGaha was Training Union director. John Carter was church clerk and Mrs. J. L. Hawkins continued as president of the Woman's Missionary Union.

Woodlawn was still economically depressed as was the community and the nation. The National Weaving Company did not operate fulltime during the years 1933 through 1935 and finally ceased operations in 1936. Early in 1937, the plant reopened and the people still living here returned to their work; but during the 1936 period of unemployment, many church members moved away and did not return. In 1936, Mrs. A. L. Stafford was president of the Woman's Missionary Union; Walter Crompton was Sunday School superintendent, James McGaha was church treasurer and John Carter continued as church clerk. Then, in 1937 J. T. Stafford became Training Union director.

During conference of December 1938, the church authorized the printing of its first stationery at a cost of $6.25.

On February 19, 1939, the church in conference accepted a gift of $95 from the Woman's Missionary Union as down payment on a parsonage on two conditions: (1) that the church meet the payments on the parsonage, and (2) that it advance its efforts to build a church house. Mrs. B. D. Jones, president of the WMU, was authorized to appoint a committee to promote action on the two conditions. The committee was made up of C. E. Dodson, J. T. Stafford and G. G. Bowen. After much discussion, the church approved the buying of a house and lot at ± 10 Geer Street at a cost of $950. Then, on February 26, 1939, a Board of Trustees was appointed for church property. John Carter was the chairman of the board, serving with J. A. McGaha and C. E. Dodson. By August of 1939, the church authorized the committee to contact an architect about drawing blueprints for a church building.

Other Church actions in 1939 were: the church voted for the membership to use Southern Baptist Convention offering envelopes, copies of the Church Covenant and Articles of Faith were distributed among the membership and the church erased ten members from its roll (most of whom had moved out of the community earlier in the decade). J. A. McGaha, Chairman of the Board of Deacons, challenged the whole church to a better life stewardship as the financial condition of the church was poor. The church voted to observe the Lord's Supper on the second Sunday night of each quarter and the Building Program Committee, chaired by James McGaha, was authorized to canvass the membership regarding systematic giving to the building fund.

On December 3, 1939, the church was called to conference to consider the resignation of the pastor, G. G. Bowen. The church accepted his resignation, and Rev. Marshall P. Rhyne of Dallas was called as pastor on February 4, 1940, at a salary of $15 per week. George F. Teague was elected as church clerk. On May 5, 1940, L. A. McAlister was elected to the deacon board as an additional deacon was needed. On July 21, 1940, the church granted J. T. Stafford a license to preach.

A committee made up of B. B. Mattox, J. A. McGaha, W. D. Gilliam and J. T. Stafford was appointed by Mr. Rhyne to investigate plans and cost for an "ideal" church building. Church members were asked to sign tithe pledges.

In August, 1940, blueprints and plans for a new church building were presented by B. B. Mattox and adopted by the church and arrangements for securing pews were turned over to a Finance Committee. At this time there was $575.17 in the Church Building Fund. On October 6, $1940,\, the$ church accepted by a standing vote the low bid of $7,050.55 for the construction of a church building.

In March, 1941, The Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company approved a loan of $6,000 to the church. In the meantime, the building fund had reached $2,122.86 and the pew fund had $195 in it.

It was on the third Sunday in July, 1941, that Woodlawn held the first service in its own church building. Minutes of the July 13, 1941, conference showed that the church voted to record the order of first service in the new church, but no such record has been found. The church bought song books at $25 per hundred, gave the pastor a raise to $20 per week and then later called him as full-time pastor at $30 per week for "as long as the mill runs six days" and at $25 when "they go back to five days." During the year letters were sent to other churches in the county for building fund donations but only $4.63 was reported from this action. In September, L. A. McAlister reported a total of $3,700.70 received into the building fund and a total of $2,996.79 paid out. J. T. Stafford asked for voluntary donations each week for the pew fund which needed to be paid off within six weeks. In October, 1941, L. C. Morrow, Claude Heffner, and P. P. Truesdale were elected to the deacon board.

Chapter 3 — A HOUSE OF WORSHIP

The years from late 1941 through 1947 found our country at war and our church facing new problems and initiating several new programs. Rev. M. P. Rhyne continued as pastor until October, 1943. Rev. M. W. Stallings followed him in early 1944, having accepted the call issued by the church in November. Rev. Stallings resigned in February, 1946, and, on June 26, Rev. Morris Baker came to Woodlawn to work with our people until late 1947.

The church's financial advantage continued with the war-time economy. Rev. Rhyne served the church at less than $20 per week; Rev. Stallings came at $40 per week, and by the time Rev. Morris Baker came the church was able to offer him $50 per week.

In 1942, the church had sold a bedspread donated by Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Smith for $35.50. By 1943, they had been able to add $1,000 as payment on the church debt. When Mr. Stallings came to the church he made a gift of $100 and issued a challenge to the church to pay off its debt. The Finance Committee recommended that the Sunday School, Training Union, and Church offerings be combined and the Budget Plan be adopted. In accordance, the first budget totaling $4,271.75 was set up in May, 1944. In the fall, the first Annual Unified Budget appeared in the Church Minute Book and totaled $6,500. Rev. and Mrs. Stallings were very mission-minded and their zeal for missions and education is reflected in the church's gifts which included not only the usual ones to Foreign and Home Missions, and to the orphanage, but special gifts to Meredith College, the Truett Memorial Fund, Mars Hill College, Boone Creek Church, and the Chinese War Relief Fund. In addition, the church pledged 20% of all funds over the budget to mission causes.

In July, 1944, the church voted to dedicate its building on Homecoming Day, September 3, 1944.

There was progress, too, in improving and adding to church facilities and equipment. J. T. Stafford led in a campaign to pay off the piano debt, the heating system was extended to the Men's Bible Class, pulpit and table scarfs were purchased, two rooms were added to the parsonage on Geer Street, a film projector was purchased, the baptistry was furnished with an oil heater, shrubbery was added to the grounds and a garage was built at the parsonage. A lawn mower, hedge clippers, and a wheelbarrow came next, and then a typewriter and a speaker for the nursery as well as another piano for the Sunday School.

On July 12, 1942, the church voted to sponsor a local Boy Scout Troop. Shortly afterward James McGaha was approved as Scoutmaster and financial support was given to the troop. In November, 1943, the Scouts were given permission to meet in the Men's Bible Class room. Another work begun this year, though not followed through nearly so well, was the library established on August 16, 1942. During Rev. and Mrs. Stallings' time of service much attention was given to Royal Ambassador and Girls Auxiliary organization. There had been a Sunbeam Band in the early 30's but these were the first youth mission groups. Two other youth projects included the contributing of $300 per year to help the other churches in Lowell pay a Bible teacher, and the distribution of Christmas treats to all children under 14 in the church and community. The Mill company helped in this last project.

One of two very special days during these years was a "Soldier Day" in November, 1943. Mrs. James McGaha was in charge of the day's activities in honor of the men in the service of our country. The other special day was the day when the war ended with the Japanes surrender in September, 1945. When the long-awaited news came through, people in the community and those working in the mill came to Woodlawn in humble thanksgiving.

James McGaha, Quinn Howe, Hoyt Patton, and Harold Singleton were on the pulpit committee that invited Rev. Morris Baker to Woodlawn. During the sixteen months at Woodlawn, the church voted to investigate the possibility of chimes, a bell, and a steeple for the church building. The church was feeling the need for more Sunday School rooms and B. B. Mattox, J. G. Morrow, and Ernest Buckner were elected as a committee to plan this addition at the rear of the church. C. E. Dodson, J. G. Morrow, and H. V. Roberts were approved as the trustees committee, and J. T. Stafford was ordained to the ministry on February 2, 1947. The church presented him a Bible at the ordination.

Vacation Bible School became a regular feature of the church's summer program during this period. J. T. Stafford, Georgia Rhyne (from Gastonia) and Rev. Stallings served as principals.

Ed Powell, who later was hired as choir director, first came to Woodlawn in a revival in 1945.

Chapter 4 — NEW FIELDS AND HORIZONS

When Rev. John Kinnaman stood in the pulpit of Woodlawn Baptist Church on the last Sunday in August, 1954, he reviewed the growth of the church and community during the time he had lived there. He recalled that when he came as a student supply pastor from Gardner-Webb College in January, 1948, there were no paved streets in the small village and only one telephone near the church. By 1954, all the streets had been paved and telephone service had been offered to every resident. Along with this community progress, the physical facilities of the church had been enlarged and expanded and several new properties had been acquired.

In 1948 Burl and Eula Jones had donated a small part of their property to the church to change some irregular boundary lines. By 1949 the street in front of the church had been paved and walkways had been built. It was about this same time that the Beaunit Heights residential area was opened, the church field enlarged, and Art Cloth stretched almost to Lowell. In those days, Beaunit Heights seemed so far away that "taxi service" paid by the church, was offered to any who needed a ride to church. This offer could be made more readily because one of the church's members, Lamar Reddick, was driving a taxi at the time.

On the church property itself, the people were concerned about a new look for their sanctuary. Many members had longed to see a steeple on the roof, a vestibule in front of the sanctuary, and a new porch and steps closer to the street. An architect was asked to draw plans for such an addition, but after several months of investigation the plans were discarded because of cost and the possibility of a new sanctuary in the not-too-distant future.

Inside the church, opera chairs were placed in the choir area, an attractive screen was built before them, and a stage curtain was purchased because Christmas plays were popular in those days. The baptistry was rebuilt and elevated and Walter Keul was hired to paint the beautiful Jordan River scene in the background. A WMS library room was built behind the pulpit area, and downstairs, an unused area was cleared for a nursery. A new baptistry heater was installed and the church paid $1,278 for its first organ.

In 1953, a 24' \times 30' building was erected on the back lot to be used for Boy Scout meetings and other church activities.

But, the biggest change was getting a new pastorium when the Geer Street residence plus $5,500 was traded for the house on North Main Street that had formerly served as the mill superintendent's home. The house was bought from the Max Guffeys who moved to ± 10 Geer Street.

There were several "firsts" during the Kinnaman pastorate. Mrs. Kinnaman was active in the music program, the ladies Sunday School Class, and the WMS. As president of the WMU she worked with Mrs. Geneva Wade and Mrs. Janie Baldwin in drawing up the first set of menus to be used in carrying food into the homes of bereaved families. This plan was first used when Mr. Holland died and the family gathered at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Algie Ammons, in Beaunit Heights.

In 1948, polio became epidemic and during that summer children were not allowed to gather at any public places or in churches. This affected Sunday School and Training Union attendance.

Even though the war had ended, our young men were still being drafted into military service. The church and its pastor sought to support and encourage these young people by sending or giving to them a Bible. Rev. Jackie Stafford, now pastor at Lakeview Church in Mc-Adenville, had written to say that he still owns and cherishes the Bible that was given to him through this ministry.

The church had no office secretary at this time, but Mr. Kinnaman had his typewriter and the mimeograph machine and, almost single-handedly, he began printing "The Woodlawn Messenger," a newsletter, usually several pages long, that was mailed to all young people away from home. It always carried news about church activities and people and a brief message of encouragement. Occasionally, the pastor would ask others in the church to submit articles for publication.

It was Rev. John Kinnaman who established the policy of weekly bulletins for the Sunday services. During his ministry, he designed and printed these himself, and after his resignation Janie and Julius Baldwin continued the practice at the request of the church.

In 1951, the church voted to enroll the pastor in the Relief and Annuity Program. In 1953, a preaching mission was opened in the Smyre area. J. N. Grant served as pastor. Later, a Sunday School was organized and Carroll Watts served as its superintendent. This program had to be disbanded the next year when the owner of the building decided to use the building for personal purposes.

The practice of giving pins for Sunday School attendance was initiated in 1954 and has continued through the years since that time. Several Sunday School members have attained many years of perfect attendance. A really outstanding family example of the effectiveness of the plan can be seen today in the Robert Kendrick family.

John Kinnaman came to Woodlawn as a ministerial student. He told the church on the day they asked him to supply that his heart was burning with a desire to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. His experience prepared him to be a blessing to others who were called by the Lord into His service. After his graduation in 1948, he counseled with three young people in the church who were already being led to study for the Lord's work. In the fall of 1948, Charles (Pete) Stafford, Marion Eugene Gibson and Janie Dunlap (now Baldwin) entered the Freshman Class at Gardner-Webb. During the next two years the church was generous in its support of these students, and it continued to help others who in the next several years felt the same call.

During Rev. Kinnaman's ministry eight men were licensed to preach the gospel. They were Charles Stafford and Gene Gibson in 1948: Jasper Grant in 1949; Ray Henderson, Tommy Ellington, and Homer Bennett in 1952 and Leonard Horne and Charles Ray Moseley in 1954. In addition both Charles Stafford and Tommy Ellington were ordained in 1954.

While Tommy Ellington was in school at Gardner-Webb he brought a classmate to visit and speak at Woodlawn. He was Fuad Saknini, an Arab Christian from Nazareth. Today, Fuad is pastor of the First Baptist Church and School in Nazareth, Israel.

John and Bernice Kinnaman, with their daughter Phyllis, left Woodlawn on August 31, 1954. He had been called as pastor to the Wilmont Baptist Church in Charlotte.

Chapter 5 — EXPANSION AND GROWTH

Rev. Morris Baker came back to Woodlawn on the fourth Sunday in April, 1955. In the interim Ed Wells, J. T. Stafford, and J. N. Grant had supplied as preacher. In their first pastorate the Bakers had lived in the Geer Street house. This time they moved to North Main Street.

In July, following their arrival, Jasper Grant was ordained to the gospel ministry and Sammy Wiley was licensed to preach. Mr. Grant, now retired, still lives in this community. Sammy is a school principal in South Carolina.

There were several changes around the church and pastorium as the Fifties merged with the Sixties. The parking lot behind the church was paved and with the permission of adjoining property owners, a driveway to Geer Street from the rear was opened and paved. This made for greater convenience, especially in directing traffic at funerals. Also, the drive at the pastorium was paved and a carport was built. The first bell system was installed in the classroom area, the first church-owned stove was placed in the Jones annex, and drinking fountains for adults and children were installed.

In 1963, the church gave the Art Cloth Parent-Teachers Association permission to cut some of the trees on its property so that a play area could be provided for the children.

Inside the church, the choir seats which had always faced the pulpit from its right were taken up and placed behind the pulpit so that the choir faced the congregation. The Hammond organ was purchased in 1960. Ed Powell of East Gastonia had been hired to direct the adult choir in 1956. In 1960 George England came in the same capacity.

In 1954, Janie Baldwin became the first "paid" secretary at $5 per week. She prepared weekly bulletins, monthly financial statements, budgets and other typed material. Mrs. Baldwin worked closely with Garney Morrow and together they set up the first individualized records of contributions.

In 1950, the partitions downstairs were removed to make an assembly room for the Primary age children. The Men's Class met across the hall and the ladies met in the area under the church porch. In 1955, a second Bible Class for men was organized and met for some time in the Scout Hut.

In 1960, the church voted to change the constitution of the deacon board by rotating its membership with each deacon serving three years. In the election which followed the following men were elected as deacons: Stowe Petty, H. V. Roberts, James McGaha, Ivey Morris, R. L. Culbreth, J. G. Morrow, Jimmy McGaha, Julius Baldwin, and J. T. Stafford. Three of these would serve three years; three would serve two years; and three would serve one year.

An outstanding achievement of Rev. Baker's second pastorate was the erection of the present educational building. The church had been looking forward to this for several years, and in May 1956, it elected B. B. Mattox, R. J. Dellinger, and Merle Yarborough as a Building Fund Committee. Later, J. T. Stafford was elected to serve as treasurer for the fund. In September of this year Martha Ann Dodson (Huffstetler) was recognized as the first child who had contributed to the fund. Her name was placed by vote of the church in the Book of Minutes.

In 1957, the church bought the residence adjacent to its lot that belonged to Burl and Eula Jones. The land would be needed as a future building site and the house could be used for classroom space until the building was completed.

In 1958, the church elected Roy Ervin, T. H. Lemons, Joe Corn, and Tom Roberts as its Building Planning Committee. In 1961, they submitted the first plan, which, after revision, was accepted, and a low bid of $63,000 was taken.

Tom Roberts, Joe Corn, Roy Ervin, and T. H. Lemons, with Stowe Petty, served on the Building Committee. The church borrowed $40,000 for the building and $5,000 for furnishings from the First Federal Savings and Loan Company in Lincolnton. The building was opened for Sunday School in April 1962. In the meantime, the Jones annex had been sold to Earl Cannon who removed it from the church lot.

In 1958, the church grieved and shared with the Bakers in the loss of their only son and two of their grandchildren, who were killed in an automobile accident near Dallas, only minutes after they had ended a visit at Woodlawn pastorium.

In the fall of 1963, Mr. Baker resigned, but agreed to serve the church until the end of the year. A pulpit committee was appointed, and when fall revival time came, the pastor asked this committee to find a preacher for the revival. They invited Rev. Wade McKnight of Vale, North Carolina, to come. On December 15, as the pulpit committee continued their work, they brought Mr. McKnight back for a trial sermon that he preached in the presence of his predecessor. Rev. Morris Baker, in turn, moderated the business meeting in which his successor was called to come as pastor in January 1964.

On December 8, 1963, the church held a dinner in honor of the Bakers and presented them with $500 as a going-away gift. On January 19, 1964, Mr. and Mrs. Baker were granted letters so that they could join the Friendly Chapel Baptist Church in Maiden, N. C. The Bakers left a beautiful and loving testimony at Woodlawn.

Chapter 6 --- A NEW SANCTUARY

From the time the first sanctuary at Woodlawn was built in 1941, there were those who felt the building was not complete because there was no steeple reaching heavenward above its roofs. Plans for such an addition were drawn but were put aside in the hope of having a more adequate building and a more magnificent steeple! Today, that steeple stands tall over Woodlawn Baptist Church with its cross pointing upward to the God whose love has made it possible, and outward to the people who have come to know Him and are continuing to serve Him because of the Christian witness moving in and around this church.

In April 1964, shortly after Wade A. McKnight had come to Wood-lawn, church offerings increased to the extent that $2,500 could be applied to the $35,000 debt owed on the educational building. In a year's time, the monthly payments of $400 were increased to $1,000 per month and in July 1966, the debt was completely paid. The church immediately established a savings account, placing there $1,500 each month, the same amount as the final regular payments on their debt.

Even before the debt was paid, in December 1965, a Planning Committee composed of Annelle Jackson, Virginia Fulbright, Tom Roberts, Stowe Fetty, Ivey Morris, Hoyt Cowan and Max Earley, was set up to begin plans for a new sanctuary.

A year after the debt ended, in July 1967, the trustees of the church, C. E. Dodson, H. V. Roberts, and J. Garney Morrow, were named as a Steering Committee to guide a Bond Sale. Bonds, Incorporated, represented by Ben Sturm, was secured to present the program in which the church approved the sale of no more than $150,000 in bonds. The bonds were issued and sold in October 1967.

After the overwhelming success of the bond sale, the church was ready to ask for an architect. Benjamin Sides of Charlotte, North Carolina, presented plans in November 1967. At this time the Planning Committee was released, as such, but they were asked to continue their service in an advisory capacity.

In the meantime, school consolidation in the Gaston County System had closed the Art Cloth School and the church decided to wait on the building plans until they were able to buy the school site if it were sold. Tom Roberts, George Waldrop and H. V. Roberts were appointed to offer bids on the property and were able to purchase it for $9,000. In 1969, the school building, erected in 1926, the first worship place for Woodlawn, was torn down and the land prepared for a new church.

In March 1969, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Cloninger, both charter members of the church, stood with Hoyt Cowan, Building Committee Chairman, and the pastor, Wade McKnight, in a ground breaking ceremony. Rayfield Construction Company, Bessemer City, North Carolina, was given the contract for $175,633. Later the church decided to complete a balcony in the church and $30,000 in bonds were sold to cover the added expense. The building was completed in 1970 and appropriate dedication services were held to commemorate the event.

During this period 1964-1970, other strides were being made in the church program itself. In 1964, the part-time secretary, Janie Baldwin, was given a raise of $10 per week because of an increased workload. She continued in this position until 1968, when the church voted to hire an office secretary to work 15 hours per week. Jane M. Saunders was secured for this position and has been serving the church for the past ten years.

J. T. Stafford had been elected the first librarian in 1943. Jimmy McGaha, Sunday School superintendent, had donated the first book, a Bible dictionary, when he moved from Woodlawn in 1962, but otherwise little progress had been made in library service. On August 3, 1969, the church voted to establish a memorial library which would be housed in the new sanctuary. All books in the Memorial Library would be given in honor or memory of family members and friends. As Library Committee Chairman, Mary B. Pinnix was very active in setting up the Memorial Library and Ruby Usery has served as librarian since its opening.

In 1969, while construction was going on at the new sanctuary, fire seriously damaged the educational building. The loss, covered by insurance, was repaired by the same contractor who was working on the other building for $60,000.

A very old custom faded away in 1969. For many years the mill company and the church had joined together in giving Christmas treats to the children in the church and community. Time changed, and with continued prosperity, this need vanished and the policy was discontinued.

In 1970 the church honored the McKnights by giving them a tour of the Holy Land. They were accompanied by Virginia Fulbright, Annelle Jackson, Marion Baker and James Battle. This was the year also, that the church first purchased robes for the choir.

Chapter 7 — ACHIEVEMENT AND CELEBRATION

August 2, 1970, was "Victory Day" for Woodlawn Baptists. On that day at 10:50 a.m., Mrs. S. A. Cloninger, one of the charter members, cut the ribbon across the front door and the people moved into the new sanctuary. A series of dedication services began with the morning worship hour and an open house was held in the afternoon when hundreds of people came to see what God had done at Woodlawn.

"The Church's Responsibility" was the theme chosen for the series of dedication services, and Pastor Wade A. McKnight preached on "The Church's Responsibility to Its Founder" during the morning worship and on "The Church's Responsibility To The Community" during the evening service. Also during the evening service, greetings were received from other churches of the community and from Dr. Charles Lowery, Mayor of Lowell, who represented the civic community.

- —August 23, Dr. Howard Ford, Director of Missions for North Carolina Baptist State Convention, spoke on "The Church's Responsibility to Missions—Home and Abroad".
- —September 13, Dr. Eugene Poston, President of Gardner-Webb College, spoke on "The Church's Responsibility to Christian Higher Education". Thomas McGraw, associate to Dr. Poston at Gardner-Webb, spoke on the same subject during the evening service.
- —October 11, Dr. Hoyle Allred, Superintendent of Missions for Gaston Baptist Association, spoke on "The Church's Responsibility To The Association".

—November 15, the series of dedication services for the new sanctuary was concluded with Dr. Perry Crouch, Executive Secretary of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention, speaking on "The Church's Responsibility To The Denomination".

In February 1971, the Church voted to change the Church Building Fund to Parsonage Building Fund as the church had already been given a lot by Beaunit Corporation on which to build. Later, in December 1971, the church received a $3,600 anonymous donation to the Parsonage Building Fund along with a challenge to get it built, and in the same month the church elected a Planning Committee. Committee members were Everette Warren, Chairman; Marion Baker, Donnie Benfield, Ruth Mattox, Joyce Grant, Roger Baucom, Roy Ervin, C. E. Dodson, and Howard Teague. Alternate members were Julius Baldwin and Shirley Culbreth. In March 1972, the Committee presented plans to build a one-story brick veneer house at an approximate cost of $42,000. The church approved the plans and a bond issue of $15,000 to help finance the construction. The bonds were sold even before they were printed. In May 1972, the church elected a Parsonage Building Committee composed of Fred Darnell, Chairman; Shirley Culbreth and Roy Ervin, and authorized immediate construction of the parsonage. In April 1973, the pastor's family was moved into the beautiful new house at 727 Lineberger Street. It was dedicated to the Lord for the use of the Church's minister and his family. Open house was held and many people, including friends from across the state, came to visit and see the new home.

Other actions of 1971 included installing intercom units in the homes of shut-ins, enabling them to participate in the worship services and cooperating with other Lowell churches in providing emergency help for the needy through the Lowell Goodwill Center. Also, Miss Rita Justice, spring graduate of Gardner-Webb College, worked with Woodlawn youth for the summer.

January 16, 1972, was proclaimed "McKnight Appreciation Day" which marked the pastor's eighth anniversary at Woodlawn. During the morning service and the luncheon that followed, more than 500 people paid honor and tribute to Pastor Wade McKnight and his family in a surprise "This Is Your Life" program.

In August, after much planning and organizing, Woodlawn launched its first "Loyalty Crusade." The theme was "Rediscovering Sunday Evening." The average attendance for the ten Sunday evening services was 310.5 which exceeded the goal of 303 set at the beginning of the Crusade. Nineteen membrs were added to the Church roll and offerings increased over $150 per week.

Other actions in 1972 include the securing of Gerry Mentzer as a part-time youth director, the decision to keep the old parsonage, and the establishment of an Activity Bus Fund. This bus was purchased in September 1974.

In 1973 the church hosted the Gaston Baptist Association and purchased the Overman property for $6,000.

Pictorial Church Directories for all resident members were ordered in 1974 and six listening units were installed in the sanctuary to accommodate those with hearing disabilities. On Memorial Day, May 26, 1974, a Flag Pole Dedication Service was held to express gratitude for those who have served and are serving in the Armed Forces of our country. A plaque, in honor of Larry K. Morrow who was reported "missing in action" on May 29, 1972, was dedicated.

In November 1975, because of growth and expansion, Jerry Watts was secured as first Minister of Music and Youth. His responsibilities were to include leadership in music, youth and recreational activities.

In December, Appreciation Day for George England, retiring Minister of Music, was observed. He was presented a color TV and the church voted to continue his pay through the rest of the year.

On Christmas Eve, Woodlawn's first Silent Communion Service was observed, beginning at 11:30 p.m. and lasting until midnight. This service is now a custom.

In celebration of our Nation's Bicentennial, our town and church had many special activities. In the Bicentennial parade, our church float won second place. On Sunday, July 4, 1976, Woodlawn's congregation joined with the rest of our nation in celebrating America's 200th birthday. The bell from Woodlawn's first church rang out with a call to worship in this land of freedom. Many members walked from the ball park which was several blocks away to the church and joined with the rest of the congregation on the porch of our "Meeting House." Costumes and styles of 1776 were copied in Woodlawn's dress for the day and believers all drank from a common cup when we observed the Lord's Supper after the morning sermon. Dinner was spread on the walk between the Sanctuary and the Educational Building because of heavy rain. Pictures were made and fellowship was enjoyed on into the afternoon.

In February 1977, a Fiftieth Anniversary Committee (Jubilee Committee) was appointed to plan and implement the history, activities, events, speakers and celebration of Woodlawn's Fiftieth Anniversary in July, 1978. Committee members were Annelle B. Jackson, Coordinator; Ruth S. Mattox, Jane M. Saunders, Janie D. Baldwin, Gene Morrow, Calvin Arrowood, Everette Warren, Ivey Morris, Marie Lawing, C. E. Dodson, Myra M. Black, Joyce B. Grant, Virginia H. Fulbright, T. H. Lemons, and Jerry Autry. On the Lord's Day, July 31, 1977, during the morning worship service, the Jubilee Committee formally proclaimed Celebration of Jubilee and in this service, the church joined in responsive reading of its Message and Doctrines. At this same time, a Survey and Long-Range Planning Committee was also appointed to make recommendations pertaining to Woodlawn's property needs, facilities, resources, and finances over a long period of time. Melvin Grant was appointed chairman to serve with Max Earley, W. C. Jackson, Ruby Usery, Lillian Morrow, Roy Ervin and Shirley Arrowood.

In January 1978, the church voted to participate in the James Robison Crusade to be held in June at the Ashbrook Stadium.

On January 28, 1978, Mr. J. J. St. Clair, Sr., our oldest charter member died at age 89. Several other octogenarians—including Mrs. S. A. Cloninger, Mrs. Kate Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Phillips, J. O. Barr, D. W. Dunlap, Fred Bumgardner, Floyd Bumgardner and Mrs. Bessie Morrow—are in Woodlawn's congregation.

On Boy Scout Sunday 1978, James McGaha, Scoutmaster for 36 years of Troop ±47 which Woodlawn sponsors, was presented "The Good Shepherd Award."

Easter Sunrise Services were held at Woodlawn on March 26 for the community and the Woodlawn Sanctuary Choir under the direction of Jerry Watts, presented the music, including "The Church Triumphant." After an inspiring service, the Jubilee Committee served refreshments.

Invitations are being prepared, special services planned and excitement is bursting forth as Woodlawn climaxes her year of celebration on July 30, 1978.

WOODLAWN'S JUBILEE—FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE.

PASTORS AT WOODLAWN

C. F. COMSTOCK 1928-1930

Led the congregation before the church was organized and became its first pastor. Called as pastor on September 16 1928. Resigned August 31, 1930.

W. T. BAUCOM 1930-1933

Served on a part-time basis because there was no work at the mill.

GRADY G. BOWEN 1934-1940

Led church through a period of economic difficulty and to a much stronger position. Fifty persons baptized in 1934. Pastorium on Geer St. was purchased.

MARSHALL P. RHYNE 1940-1943

Commuted from Dallas, N. C., and did not live in the pastorium. Guided building program which erected the first sanctuary. Led in its first worship service in 1941.

MELVIN W. STALLINGS 1943-1946

In his pastorate, church membership increased from 142 to 223. Baptized 59 people in 1944-45 church year. In his ministry he served congregations in Oklahoma, and North and South Carolina.

J. MORRIS BAKER 1946-1947 and 1955-1964

In first pastorate, ground broken to add twelve Sunday School rooms to church physical plant; in second pastorate, he led in planning and building of the educational building. Served as pastor in Gaston and Lincoln Counties for over 35 years. Was in great demand as a revival speaker.

JOHN P. KINNAMAN 1948-1954

Led in a period of growth—membership increased from 257 to 393—first served as student supply pastor from Gardner-Webb College. Church sanctuary and Sunday School rooms remodeled and redecorated during this time. Scout Hut erected and parsonage on Main Street purchased. Beaunit Heights added to church field. Seven men licensed to the ministry while he was pastor.

WADE A. McKNIGHT 1964-

Has led in a period of tremendous growth and development. New sanctuary and pastorium have been erected; membership increased to more than 700; intercom telephone ministry and activity bus have been added.
